The Centre for Strategic and International Studies

The Centre for Strategic and International Studies (CSIS), established in September 1971, is an independent, nonprofit policy research institute based in Jakarta, Indonesia. The mission of CSIS is to contribute to improved policymaking through policy-oriented research, dialogue, and public debate on a broad range of domestic and international issues, including pressing issues in the fields of economics, politics, social change, and international relations. In the area of foreign policy, CSIS research is complemented and strengthened by an extensive network of research, academic, and other organizations worldwide. In Asia Pacific, CSIS is actively involved with regional and international networks of Track 2 institutions and think tanks that interact with intergovernmental activities. This includes hosting the Indonesian National Committee for Pacific Economic Cooperation for the Pacific Economic Cooperation Council (PECC), the Indonesian Member Committee for the Council for Security Cooperation in Asia Pacific (CSCAP), and the Secretariat for the ASEAN Institutes of Strategic and International Studies (ASEAN ISIS). CSIS is also a founding institute of the Council for Asia-Europe Cooperation (CAEC). Through its active participation in these activities, CSIS is at the forefront of efforts to promote regional and intraregional cooperation.

Japan Center for International Exchange

Founded in 1970, the Japan Center for International Exchange (JCIE) is one of the few major independent, nonprofit, and nonpartisan organizations active in the field of international affairs in Japan. Operating in a country where policymaking has traditionally been dominated by the government bureaucracy, JCIE plays an important role in broadening debate on Japan's international responsibilities by conducting international and cross-sectoral programs of exchange, research, and dialogue.

JCIE operates in cooperation with its New York-based counterpart, JCIE/USA, and it sponsors a wide range of projects in collaboration with institutions around the world. These include policy research and dialogue on cutting-edge issues in international relations, leadership exchanges, and efforts to strengthen the contributions of civil society to domestic and international governance. Through these, JCIE aims to create opportunities for informed policy discussions. JCIE receives no government subsidies; rather, funding comes from private foundation grants, corporate and individual contributions, and contracts.
